GIA WATCHDOG COMMITTEE

JOSEPH McCAFFERY: "The Rules Committee is considering legislation to establish a Joint CIA watchdog committee. Taking testimony today, the committee heard Congressman Daddario of Connecticut say the role of the CIA in world affairs is a matter of serious concern to Congress and deserves careful supervision.

"Congressman William Ryan of New York said CIA should gather intelligence and not formulate foreign policy. Paul Rogers of Florida said no existing Congressional committee has broad enough jurisdiction to cover all of the CIA's activities. Similar proposals as these in the past 12 years have all fallen by the wayside."
